Fishermen, supervisor plan to fight turtle device bill

BY DENA BISNETTE
Hancock County fishermen and a county supervisor plan to fight a bill that would require turtle exclusion devices on shrimp trawl nets. Beat One Supervisor Bert Courge said he went to Jackson Monday and Tuesday to discuss the matter with legislators. He is asking for a one-year delay in consideration of the bill, which is designed to protect the Kemp's Ridley sea turtle and other endangered turtle species. The year's delay, he said, will provide time for research into the actual causes of the decline in the turtle population. Courge said he plans Friday to ask the board of supervisors for a resolution supporting the delay. Copies of that resolution will be sent to local legislators and Sea Grant Advisory Council. In addition, he has gotten commitments of support from State Representative Walter James Phillips of Bay St. Louis and State Senator Tommy Gollott of Harrison County.

He said he has also contacted Dr. Mercer Miller, an aide to Representative Trent Lott, to find out if the congressman can help delay the bill. The supervisor said he will not be representing the board Thursday at a 7 p.m. public hearing at the Marine Education Center in Biloxi, but will be attending as a concerned citizen. "They had one of these meetings in Louisiana recently and they had 5,000 people in attendance," Courge said. "Governor (Edwin) Edwards said if it comes down to the extinction of shrimpers or turtles, then bye-bye turtles. He said he is going to file suit on behalf of Louisiana's fishermen," the supervisor added.

"I've been on the phone to fishermen constantly since I got back from Jackson," Courge said late Tuesday. "They feel that the

Wastewater board prevents expansion of Bay St. Louis utility service area

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK
Several courses of action are being discussed by the Bay St. Louis City Council regarding a recent refusal of Waveland Regional Wastewater District officials to approve utility extensions outside city limits. Bay Mayor Victor J. Frankiewicz Jr. Monday reported district voting members Waveland Mayor John L. Longo and Supervisor A. A. Keller refused to second his motion to allow the city to service a development located 400 feet beyond the corporate limits.

The options being considered by the council include a way to get the wastewater district to approve the request, getting the county sewer district to exclude specific areas in its district, seeking legal means to get the request granted, annexation of some parcels outside the city limits or taking the area on as customers now but turning the revenues over to the county sewer district when established.

The council voted in January to take on the possible 120 new customers from the subdivision after the developer installed the lines.

The city's recent construction of sewage and water lines was designed to take on future growth from outside the city limits, Frankiewicz said.

"Bay St. Louis has invested millions in designing and constructing a system which allows for this expansion and the wastewater district authorities are refusing to allow it," he added.

Frankiewicz said the refusal was based on future plans to establish a county sewerage district including portions of Shoreline Park, Jordan River Estates, Garden Isles and Jordan River Isles.

"Wastewater officials said if Bay

County school board reveals plan for $6.6 million building program

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

Citing overcrowded conditions and anticipated growth, the Hancock County School Board Tuesday approved a letter of intent to issue $6.6 million of bonds for a building program.

Included in the program is the construction of a new junior and senior high school on property on Niccole Road and Highway 608 across from Stennis International Airport, addition of classrooms at Gulfview Elementary and Charles B. Murphy Elementary and renovation of all existing school buildings.

Superintendent Terrell Randolph said current overcrowded conditions in the school district cause a lack of educational opportunities.

"We have the fastest growing school district in the state and already are severely overcrowded," he added.

At Hancock North Central alone, more than 30 classrooms are needed. At this time students attend classes in 21 trailer units and in 10-12 areas not designed as classrooms, Randolph said.

"Students have to attend class in rooms that have been partitioned to make two classrooms, in the old cafeteria which has been partitioned into several classrooms and in other inadequate areas," he said.

Some areas which serve as classrooms do not even have windows, Randolph said.

"I believe the horrendous conditions at the schools causes poor attitudes among the students," he added.

Randolph also said the building program is necessary to insure the school district meets accreditation standards.

The school district received at letter in February from the Commission on School Accreditation listing accreditation deficiencies which places the district in violation of minimum requirements.

The proposed building program would assist the district in meeting these minimum requirements, Randolph said.

He also reported the sale of the bonds is not expected to cost more than four mills of tax levy to county residents.

Randolph said this would mean a tax increase of only approximately $30 to the owner of a $50,000 home.

He also said the sale of the bonds would only marginally increase taxes for land owners.

The resolution of intent to sell the bonds was passed 4-1 with Board Member Tommy Shaw voting nay.

Following the vote, Shaw reported he was resigning from the board.

"I have enjoyed most of my time serving on the board but I don't feel I have the time to put into it like I should," he said.

Shaw said he had voted against the sale of bonds for the building program because he does not believe the bonds can be built for the estimated amounts.

Earlier in the meeting a discussion on the renegotiation of Sixteenth Section land leases.

Waveland resident Robert Seaton asked the status of a lease being held by a board member.

Randolph said all leases are being renegotiated.

Following his resignation, Shaw who holds a lease on 150 acres of Sixteenth Section lands, told Seaton it would not be a great personal loss if he could not retain the Sixteenth Section lands.

He also said in addition to the lease amount, he pays more than $300 in taxes on the land each year.

Shaw pays $13.75 per year for his lease.

The vacancy caused by the resignation of Shaw will be filled by an appointment of the school board within the next 60 days.

The appointed school board member will serve until the first Monday of January succeeding the next general election when a member shall be elected to fill the remainder of the unexpired term.

Hancock County Election Commission Secretary Charles Gottschalk received an attorney general's opinion Wednesday concerning who would appoint the new member.

Gottschalk said 1986 election laws give the board of supervisors authority to appoint persons in case of vacancies but the attorney general's office said school board laws takes precedent over the newer laws.

Bay-Waveland officials seek spending specifics

BY DENA BISNETTE

Local officials have requested information on spending by the Bay St. Louis-Waveland School District in several specific categories.

School spending and promoting a positive image for Hancock County have become continuing concerns for a governmental discussion group consisting of members from the Bay St. Louis, Waveland and Hancock County boards.

The two topics were discussed at a Tuesday meeting that included Hancock County Beat Three Supervisor Roger Dale Ladner; Bay St. Louis Mayor Victor Frankiewicz Jr. and Councilmen John Wilkerson, Lisa Coward, Charles Johnson and James Thriffley; Waveland Mayor John Longo Jr. and Ward Two Alderman Barbara Rappold; and Bay-Waveland Superintendent of Education Roger Oge' and School Board Member Charles Benvenuti.

Longo asked for a comparative analysis of school districts to find out where the Bay-Waveland district's spending is ranked and what improvements could be made by redistributing spending.

He said the intergovernmental discussion group should discuss long-range plans, but "I don't think members should each call separate press conferences and shoot each other down."

The mayor said he was referring specifically to a newspaper story in which Oge' had provided statistics on per student spending for coastal school districts and said he did not think those statistics were "very analytical."

Longo said that he wanted to have information on specific spending areas of interest to taxpayers, such as administration, teacher salaries and transportation.

Benvenuti and Oge' both stated that they believe comparing the district with other coastal districts would be the best procedure to follow, since districts in more northern areas differ too much in nature from the Bay St. Louis-Waveland area.

One problem Oge' cited in using districts from other parts of Mississippi is lack of a uniform record keeping system with regard to budgets.

He said keeping within the coastal area would be more feasible because the systems used by coast districts

By ELLIS CUEVAS
Some 70 community leaders were told of the possibility of 1,500 new jobs being generated with proposed expansions at the National Space Technological Laboratories the next 10 years.

Jerry Hlass, NSTL director, indicated the biggest asset for the Hancock County facility was the large buffer zone.

Hlass said, "The buffer zone is a vital asset at NASA and the Nation for testing larger propulsion systems."

The help of lobbying by state government and civic leaders could help NSTL get programs approved by the president and funded by the president, Hlass stated.

The proposed programs could mean some $850 million in construction in Hancock County.

The Air Force is in competition with NSTL in Hancock County for testing of the reusable space transport and cargo vehicle with an advanced propulsion system.

The new system is still in the planning stages and would be more powerful than the current US space vehicles in use.

The space shuttle can place a payload of 30,000 pounds into space while the proposed six-engine cargo vehicle can carry up to 150,000 pounds.

The larger payloads will be necessary for America's planned manned space station, Hlass said.

Hlass stated, "The Challenger accident taught NASA many lessons, and time is being taken to make necessary improvements before the next scheduled February 1988 flight of the space shuttle.

Also an orbiter crew escape system is being designed, hardware corrections such as redesigning the joints of the solid rocket booster, and safety being NASA's primary factor as to when the shuttle will be ready to fly, Hlass added.

The director said NSTL stood a good chance of landing the testing of the proposed space vehicle because there is no other place in the country where it can be tested.

NASA is interested in developing and testing better solid fuels in order to launch larger payloads, Hlass commented.

In a preliminary environmental assessment of the testing of the solids which contain aluminum and ammonia, gases are created which can create acid rain.

"The findings indicate that rocket testing could be done on certain days without rain, and testing could be done safely," Hlass stated.

Hlass gave a breakdown of the residences of the 4,856 employees at NSTL as of January 1, 1987.

A.A. (Dolph) Kellar, president of the Hancock County Board of Supervisors expressed a continuing concern about only 18 percent of the employees residing in the county where some 80 per cent of the facility is located.

Hlass indicated everyone in the county has to be a little more aggressive stating, "When I moved here, I had several real estate agents from Pearl River and Har-ison Counties contact me."

Hlass told how the employees at NSTL want to be and are involved in their communities.

The employee civil service education summary at NSTL drew much attention.

The breakdown given by Hlass were, master's degree-doctorate 22 per cent; bachelor's degree 37 per cent; associate's degree-some college 24 per cent; and high school education 17 per cent.

The average salary of NSTL's employees is $25,000 annually, Hlass said.

Robber poses as FBI agent to gain entrance

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK
Police are seeking a well-dressed, white male in connection with an armed robbery at a North Beach Boulevard residence Saturday night.

Ruth Chambers of 1100 North Beach Blvd. told police the robber identified himself as an agent with the Federal Bureau of Investigation and said he was conducting an investigation of neighbors.

Bay St. Louis Chief Detective David Murtagh said after being allowed inside, the robber began a brief description of his investigation and then drew a .38 caliber revolver and instructed Chambers and guest Charles Kergosien, to lie on the floor.

The robber then tied the victims up and led them to the bedroom where they were forced to lie on the bed while the house was thoroughly searched.

Murtagh said $4,200 in cash and $62,000 in jewelry along with Mrs. Chamber's 1982 Oldsmobile station wagon was taken by the robber.

"This robbery was a very professional job," Murtagh said. "The robber even wore surgical gloves."

However, Murtagh said, he has recovered a significant amount of evidence which was being sent to the Mississippi Crime Laboratory for analysis.

Mrs. Chambers station wagon was recovered Sunday in Gulfport, he said.

The suspect being sought is described as a white male, neatly dressed, 5'8" 180 lbs, brown wavy hair, beard, brown suit, late 30's to early 40's, according to Murtagh.

Florida authorities apprehend Martinez

BY DENA BISNETTE

Junco Ivan Martinez, a Colombian citizen wanted in connection with an April 1984 drug raid in Kila, has been apprehended by Dade County, Fla., authorities.

According to Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Peterson, Martinez, 36, was arrested Tuesday and local authorities have already discussed extradition.

Sheriff's Department Investigator Alvin Ladner said Martinez is charged with possession of 5,000 pounds of marijuana with intent to distribute.

The 5,000 pounds of marijuana was seized at the Kila residence of Virginia Guilbeau, who was arrested along with her son, Gregory Ladner, and Martinez.

Ladner is currently serving a sentence on the charges at Parchman Penitentiary. Guilbeau, also convicted, was housed in the Hancock County Jail after an appeal was rejected until she was transferred to a women's facility in Rankin County Tuesday morning.

The suspect was indicted by an April 1984 Hancock County Grand Jury and released on $75,000 bond, but failed to return for a court appearance.

In addition, Martinez is wanted on federal drug-related charges and on charges in McAllen, Texas.

"We feel like he was one of the main actors in the case. We feel like he was involved in the deal," Ladner said.

He also stated that the Hancock County Sheriff's Department believes that the 5,000 pounds of marijuana confiscated was not all the marijuana involved in the case.

Quotables by CUEVAS

Saturday will be parade time again in the City of Waveland.

It will be the day of the Waveland Civic Association's big St. Patrick's Day Parade at 2 p.m.

Floats will be many as well as marchers and so on.

Gilbert Brechtel of Waveland is Grand Marshal with Alana Noonan as Colleen. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alan Noonan of Bay St. Louis.

The parade begins at Waveland and Central Avenues, Central to Coleman Avenue, Coleman to Beach Boulevard, Beach to Lafitte, Lafitte to Central, Central to place of beginning.

Parade goers all seem to have a good time at the St. Patrick's Day festivities in Waveland.

It is also a good time to see the O'ladners, O'Bourgeois', O'Hubbards, O'Longos, O'Yarboroughs, O'Smolenskys, O'Rappolds, and on and on.

We hope to see you at the St. Patrick's Day parade on Saturday.

Last week we were looking for volunteers to take a course on how to teach people to read.

The course was held at the Bay St. Louis Library and apparently it was very successful.

There were 22 people who are now added to the list of Hancock County volunteers qualified as adult tutors.

Now the volunteer tutors, (34 now available) need adult students willing to learn how to read.

The reading service is free and is on a one to one basis between student and teacher.

Persons interested can receive further information by calling the Bay St. Louis Library at 467-5282.

I saw a very interesting bumper sticker on an auto traveling on Main Street in Bay St. Louis on Wednesday.

The message, 'Pray for me, I drive 603' is a bumper sticker every motorist who travels that highway should display.

We received some bad news last week with the departing of the Mississippi Railway and Transportation Museum from Port Bienville.

The 1925 Baldwin Steam Locomotive and railway passenger cars will be really missed as a Hancock County attraction.

The sound of the steam whistle, smell of the coal smoke sure brought memories to myself as well as others who could remember when traveling by train was the style of transportation for the area.

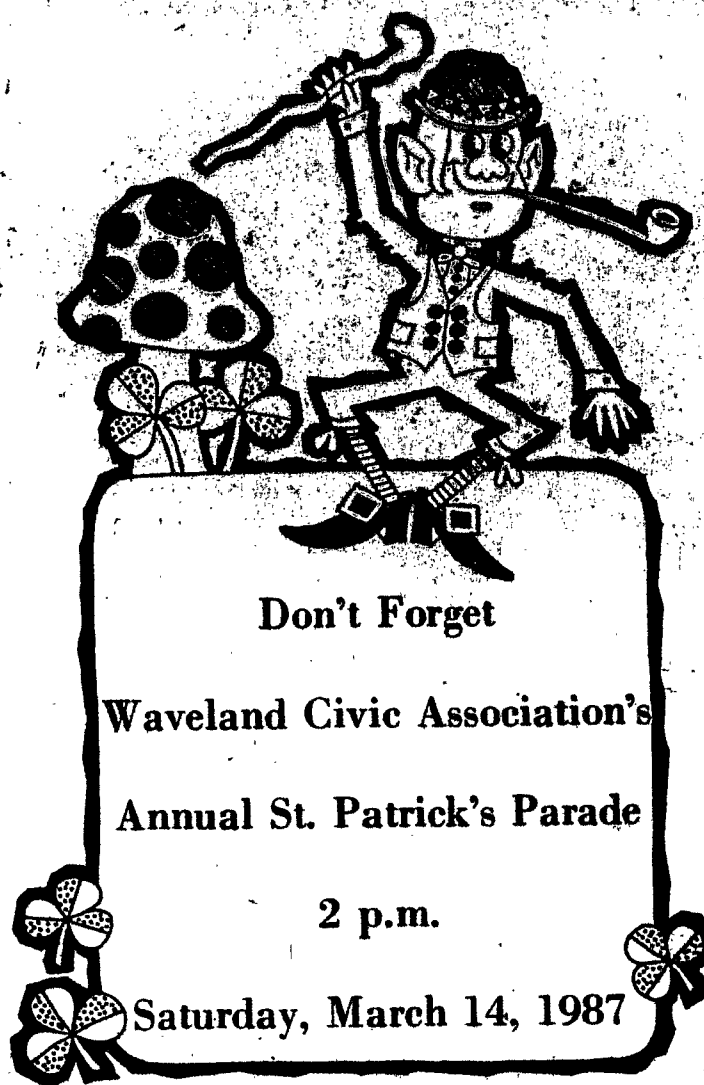

'Lady', the locomotive will probably make it's last pass through Hancock County on Saturday morning when it leaves Port Bienville at 8 a.m. headed for Meridian via Mobile.

The three seasons of operation of the train at Port Bienville were really enjoyed by many local residents as well as visitors.

We are sure Tish Haas will be waiting for 'Lady' to arrive in Meridian on Sunday.

In order to see the train in operation, I guess we will have to motor to Meridian whenever operations resume to visit 'Lady'.

We would like to express a sincere wish of good luck to J.V. Cannon, president of the board of directors of the Mississippi Railway Transportation and his wife Georgia, as well as to everyone connected with the organization.

Eyes on Mississippi

By Bill Minor

JACKSON—Here we go again, back to the old shell game of trying to finance state services.

The chief operator of the game is Gov. Bill Allain, who reminds one of when George Bush called Ronald Reagan's plan to cut the federal deficit "voodoo economics."

Allain week before last miraculously "found" $43 million more money he said the state could spend to fund the 1988 budget without raising taxes. His "discovery," coming on the eve of the vote on the income tax hike in the House, is widely credited with defeating the bill by a handful of votes.

The $43 million, Allain says, can be spread around the most needy state services, among them higher education and textbooks, and give state employees their first raise in three years.

Fiscal leaders in the Legislature, after the defeat of the income tax bill, have decided to call Allain's hand on his version of financing state government. They've adopted the position his estimated $43 million can be treated as "new" money and they are going to proceed to appropriate it all.

As Sen. Glen Deweese of Meridian, the Senate Appropriations chairman, said last week, "if he wants to play that kind of ball game we'll play the same game and let him take the consequences."

This means that after the next fiscal year begins on July 1, and there isn't money in the state treasury to pay the bills, Allain by law will have the burden of ordering the slashes in state agency appropriations.

Unfortunately, this is the same scenario the state budget went through three of the past four years beginning in 1982. Some $300 million in mid-year cuts had to be made in funds state departments and institutions were supposed to receive under appropriations made by the Legislature. This resulted in desperate measures by the state agencies to readjust their budgets, thus having a destabilizing effect on state services.

In 1986, the Legislature made its deepest cuts since the Depression in the allocation of funds to state services, zapping some $160 million across-the-board from the minimum needs state budget for fiscal 1987.

The damage such across-the-board cuts can do was dramatically shown in the state textbook purchasing program. Already the lowest in the nation per child, the textbook funding was cut in half.

As a result, school kids are still using textbooks that say Richard Nixon is president and that the nation has not yet landed a man on the moon.

Allain's great discovery of $43 million is, legislative fiscal leaders know quite well, another case of using one-time windfall money, and the usual lapses of funds (most of which are unspent because anticipated matching federal aid was not forthcoming) for recurring expenses. In reality out of the $43 million only $12 million is recurring revenue.

The state got a one-time windfall of $25 million from the early payment of state income taxes by corporations and individuals at the end of 1985 before the new federal income tax reform law became effective.

It's bad business, and bad government, however, to use that non-recurring revenue for current expenses.

For example, in your own household, say you suddenly won $500 in a grocery give-away. Feeling flush, you go out and buy a new car to replace the old rattle trap. But your car rate goes up $100 a month on a three-year loan.

Your winnings would cover the first five months, but afterwards you're in trouble because your monthly income remains the same.

The essential needs of higher education alone are more than the $43 million in Allain's pot-of-gold. It would take $80 million to put the funding level of the universities back to their relative position of six years ago in the state budget.

In fact, as Rep. Ed Perry of Oxford, the House Appropriations chairman, pointed out last week, "there are $240 million in requests out there from state agencies, all of which can be justified."

Perry is one of the legislative leaders who warned before the 1987 session began that there was no way to stretch the amount of revenue from the present tax structure to cover the needs of vital state services. He was a leading advocate of raising the income tax to restore cuts in the tax made in 1973 and 1979.

Perhaps one of the major developments of the current legislative session is the sharp split that has taken place over taxes between the two key fiscal leaders of the House—Perry and Rep. H.L. Sonny Merideth of Greenville, the Ways and Means chairman. Merideth had oddly come down on the same side with Allain as an adamant foe of raising taxes for general state services.

Meantime, the state sales tax, which is the key indicator of state revenues, declined for the fourth successive month in February and is now $19 million below budget estimates so far this fiscal year. If the sales tax slide continues, even the $25 million income tax windfall Allain is banking on could disappear.

Realists in the Legislature are fully aware that Allain is going out of office and won't be around to help pick up the pieces next year.

Library Cassette Tapes Offer Line-By-Line Tax Help

Information to help taxpayers complete a federal tax return may be available at many local libraries on audio cassette tapes prepared by the Internal Revenue Service.

The tapes allow individuals to listen to step-by-step instructions on how to prepare IRS Forms 1040EZ, 1040A, and the Form 1040, Schedule A, B and W, while working on their returns.

Local public library branches usually offer the free tapes through the traditional book loan procedure. A standard cassette tape player is all that is necessary to use the tapes.

To make the best use of the tapes, taxpayers should have their tax forms and instructions on hand to work on while playing the tapes. Frequently used forms, schedules and instructions are also available at many local libraries, by calling the toll-free number or by using the order blank in the tax package.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Some humans could use a leash

March 8, 1987

Dear Sir:

In reference to the leash law article which appeared on March 8, 1987, I would like to respond to and enlighten anyone who may be interested to know of some of the consequences that are suffered by people and animals who do have the initiative to have their animals confined.

After years of experience of keeping my dogs inside a fence, I have witnessed countless absurd instances that prove that some so called law abiding citizens as well as their children, are not aware of, or do not respect the fact that a dog is inside of his own domain or confinement, which leaves the animal an easy target for bee bees, firecrackers, hurling beer bottles, to be poked with sticks, laughed at, howled at, not to mention some who find it quite amusing to jump from side to side and do all sorts of fancy footwork, thus provoking a very docile pet to become confused and possibly vicious.

Until the youth or still young at heart adults are put under a leash law I feel as if perhaps the animal has a better defense to run from rather than watch the supposedly superior human act like an animal himself.

Sincerely,

Dear Sir:

Mayor encourages public to heed leash law - "What A Farce!"

Doesn't the mayor know that he can't just encourage or urge the public to heed leash law? Enforce it, Mr. Mayor.

I have lived here in Ward 1 for 25 years. There hasn't been a mayor, Ward 1 councilman, police chief or dog warden in office in those years that I haven't complained to about dogs running loose.

Not only on our street or ward, but all over the city.

I've been wasting my time and effort and nothing to amount to anything is ever done.

Have even been told I'd have to bring people (whose dogs run loose) to court in order to stop it.

If it's the law, why should one have to go to court to enforce it?

Suggestion: Fine first offenders $25 and $50 second or more times, then give the dog warden a measly $5 for every dog he picks up.

It would give him the incentive to do his job properly and I'm sure the extra money he earned would be appreciated.

The city may even benefit from it - think about it!

Legislative Update

By Ellen Ann Featras

Passage of a massive highway program financed with higher gas taxes and death to a proposed new state constitution topped last week at the Mississippi Legislature.

The two were among the top issues of the 1987 session, along with a move for a tax increase, which was voted down in late February.

Tuesday deadline for some committee work shifted last week's focus to the committee room, where legislation meeting its death was an significant as measures passed on to the floor.

This week brings another major deadline, for floor votes on general bills and constitutional amendments originating in the opposite chamber.

The $1.6 billion highway building plan, one of the biggest in state history was vetoed by Gov. Bill Allain.

Allain had threatened to veto any highway bill that raises taxes without reorganizing the Mississippi's highway administration.

The House voted 78-39 for the program, which already has passed the Senate.

The 1,077-mile four-laning plan would be financed through increasing motor fuel excise taxes by 3.6 cents over two years and $5 increases in license tag fees. State and federal highway money would go to the construction as well.

Construction would be complete by 2001.

As expected, the House Constitution once again killed a bill to hold a statewide vote on calling a convention to write a new state constitution.

New constitution advocates see this week as the last ditch for pushing a new state constitution this year. A minority report on a new constitution will be filed, taking its place at the bottom of the House floor calendar. Before a full House vote could take place on the Senate-passed bill, either every other item must be disposed of or two-thirds of the House must agree to move it up the calendar, which is considered unlikely.

Casualties of the committee deadline week were: —a House-passed bill to authorize votes on allowing horse racing and pari-mutuel betting in Tunica and Jackson counties. The measure died without a vote in the Senate Finance Committee.

—a House-passed bill requiring ability insurance for all cars registered in the state died without a vote in the Senate Insurance Committee.

—Senate and House-passed proposals to phase in the compulsory school attendance age from 13 to 16. Each chamber had approved its own measure, but neither took up the other's bill.

—a proposal to ease Section 109 of the state constitution, which prohibits public officials from having conflicts of interest.

Legislation that survived the committee deadline included: —legalized bingo games conducted by non-profit organizations and —reorganizing the Mississippi Memorial Stadium Commission.

Also last week, fiscal leaders at the Capitol agreed to add $43 million to the state's revenue expectations for next year. Some legislators have expressed interest in putting the funds in pay raises for state employees and university and junior college personnel.

Allain has favored the pay raises, but opposes any tax increases to pay for them.

House HB1206 would hike excise taxes on motor fuels by 3.6 cents a gallon over two years partially to fund four-laning 1,077 miles of highway. The House bill passed 78-39 after the Senate the previous week. The next stop is the office of Gov. Bill Allain, who has threatened to veto the tax bill.

Voting: Holston, nay; Phillips, nay.

SB2454 extends the immunity of the state and its political units from damage suits for another year. The House version of the Senate-passed measure also extends immunity from damage lawsuits to government employees on duty. The bill cleared the House 106-6.

Voting: Holston, yea; Phillips, yea.

SB2540 would require municipal utilities to secure Public Service Commission approval before taking over a utility service area by eminent domain. Opponents say the bill would safeguard the customer base of the big utilities. The measure was released from the House 67-28.

Voting: Holston, yea; Phillips, nay.

HB863 would allow certain inmates to serve their prison terms at home under rules established by the state Board of Corrections. The measure passed 28-16.

Voting: M. Smith, not voting; Taylor, G. nay.

HB781 would allow the boards of supervisors to change the official name of their local junior colleges to "community college." The bill passed without opposition.

Wastewater problem brought before intergovernmental group

BY DENA BISNETTE

A problem of the Waveland Regional Wastewater Management District has been brought before an intergovernmental discussion group including representatives from Hancock County, Bay St. Louis and Waveland.

The entities are the same three represented in the district, but the recently-formed discussion group is not authorized to take any action.

Bay St. Louis Mayor Victor J. Frankiewicz Jr. said he disagrees with the district's inaction on his request that a proposed subdivision on Blue Meadow Road be allowed to hook into city sewerage.

The subdivision is included in boundaries of a proposed county sewerage district, which is expected to be brought before the board of supervisors for preliminary approval on Friday.

Frankiewicz, explaining the situation to Roger Dale Ladner, the only supervisor present Tuesday, explained that the county will not be able to provide the subdivision with sewerage for two to three years.

The city can provide that service now and the subdivision developers have already asked for permission to hook into the Bay St. Louis system.

"The real issue involves who gets the customers," the mayor said.

At the wastewater district board meeting last week, Waveland Mayor John Longo Jr. and Board of Supervisors President A.A. Kellar contended that the county, which would have the district's fewest paying customers for its sewerage system, needed the subdivision customers to help cut operating and maintenance costs.

Longo continued the contention Tuesday.

"Our concern is that we've already invested big money in a system that's in the ground and that our customers are paying for now," said Frankiewicz, adding that the system was expanded with pipes large enough to serve outlying areas like the subdivision.

"The only way to lower cost is to take in those additional customers," he said.

Longo contends that Bay St. Louis could provide the service until the county system is in place, then turn the subdivision over to the county.

He also contends that the cities should not levy a transportation charge on county customers, something Frankiewicz has also proposed to reduce costs.

He agreed that the county should pay any costs of expanding city collection lines to handle the additional flow to the Waveland treatment plant, which will become the primary treatment facility when the district's current improvement project is completed.

Ladner said discussion with Kellar, who did not attend Tuesday's meeting, have indicated that the transportation charge may not become an issue because Kellar is considering having county collection lines bypass territory within the Bay St. Louis city limits.

Christ Episcopal featuring lenten services

Christ Episcopal Church has a new but very old approach to Lenten Season services.

Each Thursday at 6 p.m. in Virginia Hall there will be a service utilizing a historical liturgy of the church.

The March 12 liturgy is from the Pre-Nicene period (prior to 325 A.D.) when congregations were small. There were no fixed texts, no vestments, and very few ceremonial actions.

The setting for this rite would be in a living room of a home or parish house.

Lessons tended to be longer than is now common, sometimes comprising whole books of the Bible.

After the readings and sermon, the catechumens and penitents were dismissed and the Liturgy of the Word was concluded with the Kiss of Peace.

A potluck supper will follow the service.

Visitors are welcome to the service and the potluck supper.

Turtle device....

statistics the environmentalists are using to try to pass the bill don't tell the whole story.

The supervisor explained that most fishermen said they have picked up only one or two turtles each when using trawls during the past 15 years.

In all cases, the fishermen reported that the turtles were alive and were returned to the sea, he added.

The turtle exclusion devices cost about $400 each and allegedly cut shrimpers' production by about 20 percent. In addition, the weight of the device increases a boat's fuel consumption.

Courrage said the fishermen are contending that many of the turtles are eaten by gulls and redfish shortly after hatching and that these natural predators contribute more to the decline in Kemp-Ridley turtle population than fishermen.

"The answer is to set up a turtle hatchery, and the fishermen have said they would contribute to the cost of it," the supervisor said.

The hearing Thursday is expected to draw fishermen from Louisiana, Texas, Alabama and Florida in addition to Mississippi.

CAIRE

Catfish isn't just for frying anymore, even in the opinion of gourmets the world over; instead, the cat's "gone classy" and is showing up in tasty dishes all around the place!

Of course, this just bears out what we've all known all along - the fresh water catfish is delicious, however you cook it. And, thanks to the swift growing catfish farming industry, more and more avid diners are learning the joy of eating the "cat."

In fact, according to a report from the Catfish Farmers of America, Mississippi has cornered the market. Of 15 major catfish producing states, our Mississippi leads with approximately 85,000 acres under cultivation in catfish ponds.

And, since the Catfish Farmers Association estimates that one acre might produce from 3,500 to 4,000 pounds of catfish annually, you can understand the "cat's" importance to the economy.

Alabama ranks second, with 12,000 acres; Louisiana fifth, with approximately four or five thousand acres - and North Carolina, last, with 100 acres, according to reports.

It's long past time, in my opinion, for fresh water "cats" to receive their due as the delectable food they are, whether freshly caught, simply rolled in cornmeal and fried, or cooked in a more elaborate style.

Catfish and hushpuppies are an old-time, long enjoyed treat all over the South, aren't they? Even Larousse, that arbiter of classic French cuisine, paid tribute to the catfish.

His "Larousse Gastronomique" - the "bible of the French cook" describes the catfish this way: The flesh is delicate, and there are not too many bones.

Though the catfish adapts well to all sorts of elegant dishes, many Southerners maintain that it's best of all fried, its inner sweetness sharpened by its crisp outer coating - and the catfish Poor Boy is at the top of the list!

But, for a change of pace, give a change of pace to that favorite of Creole cuisine, Trout Meuniere, and cook:

CATFISH MEUNIERE
2 1/2 to 3 lbs. fillets of catfish
6 Tbsp. butter or margarine
Milk, flour, butter as needed
Lemon or lime juice
Minced parsley

Dip the fillets in milk, then in flour. Heat a little butter in a heavy skillet or sauteuse (saute pan) - using barely enough butter to coat the bottom of the pan. Cook the fillets till golden brown on the underside. Then, using a spatula lest they break up, turn and brown on the other side. As soon as the fish flakes easily to the touch of a fork, remove to a heated serving platter, and sprinkle with lemon juice and parsley.

Swish a splash or so of white wine around the bottom of the skillet, to scrape up those delicious "burnings," and add 6 tablespoons of butter, heating till barely brown. Pour over the fish and serve at once, along with potatoes braiant (cubed, parboiled potatoes, fried in butter.) (Six servings.)

Variations on the theme: Add sliced, sauteed almond slivers for "Catfish Almondine" - or add pecans - or white grapes and so on. Experiment - and enjoy!

WASTEWATER PROBLEMS—Hancock County Beat Three Supervisor Roger Dale Ladner listens Tuesday as Bay St. Louis Mayor Victor Frankiewicz Jr. describes a problem with boundaries of a proposed county sewerage district. The two met at an intergovernmental discussion meeting that included representatives of Bay St. Louis, Waveland and the county. (Staff photo by Dena Bisnette)

are "fairly standard."

The group also discussed the need for five elected school board members. The existing school board has gone on record as supporting the proposal.

The present board has two members elected from the district's outside territory, which consists of Waveland and a section of Hancock County. The other three are appointed by the Bay St. Louis City Council.

Longo said he feels that Waveland does not have proper representation on the board and Frankiewicz said he feels that Bay St. Louis residents would prefer elected trustees because appointed trustees tend to be less responsive to the public.

Frankiewicz also said that there should be some provision made for recall of members after a fully elected board is implemented.

The need for a more positive image for the county was discussed in connection with a public officials' conference held Monday at NASA's National Space Technology Laboratories.

John Mason, a Chamber of Commerce member attending the meeting, said the conference mostly concerned new developments expected during the next decade at NSTL.

Mason said Director Jerry Hlass had explained that a proposed $1 billion in new construction is expected to help create jobs while additional testing towers are being built, and increased testing of new types of shuttle engines is expected to create 1,200 to 1,400 permanent jobs.

The group discussed applying for impact money in the event of an expansion and the possibilities of obtaining grants for various types of improvements now, as well as the need for more specific information about the NSTL expansion.

Ladner suggested possibly bringing in a speaker from NSTL to provide more information at the next intergovernmental meeting in April, then setting up a task force to decide what would be the most effective way to insure that a fair number of jobs and related benefits would go to Hancock counties.

Longo said the county, Waveland and Bay St. Louis failed in promoting the area when NSTL was originally established, resulting in loss of much of the housing market created when NSTL employees were transferred in from other areas.

Paul Vegas, a citizen at the meeting, pointed out that one of the major problems to be faced in promoting Hancock County is residents who talk badly about their own communities, giving the area a negative rather than positive image.

In other business, the group discussed a possible merger of the City-County Library in Bay St. Louis with the Bay Senior High School Library, and a dispute regarding a proposed county sewerage district.

Waveland will host the next meeting, which has been set for 5 p.m. April 14 at Waveland City Hall.

Camera course offered at USM-Hattiesburg

Individuals interested in getting the most out of their 35mm camera should take note of a course offered by the University of Southern Mississippi Division of Lifelong Learning.

The course, which costs $35, places emphasis on understanding the camera and lens in order to visualize the photo before it is taken.

The class will meet from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. on five Thursdays beginning March 19th and ending April 16th. It will meet in Room 215 of McLemore Hall on the USM campus.

Brent Wallace, general manager of Stewart's Cameras in Hattiesburg and award-winning freelance photographer, will be the instructor.

For more information call USM's Division of Lifelong Learning at (601) 266-4201 or write Southern Station Box 5056, Hattiesburg, Miss., 39406-5056.

St. Louis offered utility services in this area, the city would be depriving the future county district of these customers," he added.

However, even with the establishment of the county district, there are no immediate plans to extend services to this area, he said.

In the proposed district, $4.6 million of capital improvements for the installation of sewer lines is planned.

It will not be feasible any time in the next several years for the proposed sewer district's service to be extended to the areas near Bay St. Louis city limits, he said.

"The ultimate issue is whether we get the customers or a proposed county district which will not be able to offer the services for many years will get the customers," Frankiewicz said.

Wastewater officials believe the customers must be reserved to help the new district, he said.

"But when you consider the expenses involved, the proposed county district is expecting 85 percent federal funding but Bay St. Louis is paying 100 percent for its projects and have been paying for 20 years," he said.

Frankiewicz also stated that to the best of his knowledge, nothing in writing had been presented to the wastewater board or any official board showing the boundaries of the proposed district.

Roughly, the verbally proposed boundaries run along the Jourdan River, Highway 603 and Bay St. Louis city limits, according to Frankiewicz.

"Whether intentionally or inadvertently, the proposed district leaves a margin of growth outside of Waveland but effectively locks out any growth for Bay St. Louis," he said.

"This action by wastewater officials puts the city of Bay St. Louis at a serious disadvantage. It essentially freezes the addition of any new customers outside the city limits and also freezes to some extent, the revenue base," he stated.

"This is a very bad precedent for the city," Frankiewicz said.

"Bay St. Louis wants to cooperate with the wastewater district and has already in many ways by reserving space in the city's rights-of-way for the county sewer district's large pipes," he said.

"The city has also footed the bill for capital improvements at the sewer lagoon which the county's will flow through. There are actually some fittings already installed awaiting the county connection."

"We have also agreed to defer any payments from the county district costs until they have the revenue base set up," he said.

"I feel this is a situation where neither the consultant, the county's representative or the district itself is reciprocating the spirit of cooperation the city of Bay St. Louis has shown," Frankiewicz said.

Budget cuts jeopardize information services

"Information that adult Mississippians depend upon from their public libraries is in jeopardy as a result of state budget cuts which have reduced state grant support of public libraries," according to Pamela Lambert, president of the Mississippi Library Association.

Restoration of state cash grant funds is being requested by the Mississippi Library Commission. The $287,750 restoration request faces a March 16 deadline in the Senate. Direct state aid to local public libraries totals $1.7 million; this year, cut from almost $2 million in 1986.

At least 1.7 million information questions are answered each year using public library resources according to the results of a statewide survey of adult public library users commissioned by the Mississippi Library Association and released at a Senate Appropriations Subcommittee hearing. State public libraries also circulate over 7.4 million items annually.

Hancock County Libraries circulated more than 80,000 items last year. In addition, the adult user survey taken at branches of the Hancock County Library System indicates that more than 40,000 visits were made to local public libraries in the past year by persons 18 and older.

More than 10,000 calls were made to local libraries by adults seeking information and answers to questions.

The survey revealed that adults used the public library for numerous services including informational items; obtaining informational assistance from library personnel; using specialized reference materials; using copy machines; magazines, trade journals, and newspapers; viewing exhibits and attending programs; using the meeting rooms, audio-visual equipment and computers.

Reasons cited for using the library included obtaining information relating to a career or business; hobbies and crafts; how-to-do something; club or church work as well as pleasure reading.

"Mississippi adults depend heavily on their local public libraries for information on every aspect of their lives, from business management to raising children to computer technology," Lambert said.

The adult users survey validated the variety and extent of services performed by libraries:

94,248 telephone information requests.

879,944 magazines and newspapers uses in libraries.

286,780 special program attendance.

53,820 uses of public access computers.

Public libraries are funded primarily by appropriations from municipalities, counties, and from the state. The Hancock County Library System is funded by Hancock County $123,000, Bay St. Louis $30,000 and Waveland. State support for public libraries is provided by the state legislature through the Mississippi Library Commission and takes two forms. Public libraries and their patrons receive direct services, such as those for the blind and physically handicapped, and receive direct cash grants for professional personnel, who form the backbone of information services.

"Professional salaries for librarians are not competitive within the state educational community," Lambert said. "The beginning salary for a librarian with a bachelor's degree will be $13,115 in 1988. The beginning salary for a teacher with a similar degree will be $15,875. Differences in starting salaries are similar at all education levels."

Most financial support for public libraries continues to come from counties and municipalities. In 1986 local sources accounted for $12.3 million or 65 percent of the income of public libraries.

"In addition, other community services provided by the Mississippi Library Commission through local libraries have been weakened including services to older citizens and services to schools."

Waveland students to compete in regional science fair

Twenty-one Waveland Elementary School students will compete in the regional science fair in Biloxi. These students were preliminary winners in the school science fair in February.

Students in grades kindergarten through fourth grade were encouraged to enter a project to be judged.

There were approximately 240 projects entered in the local science fair.

Participation in any Regional Mississippi Fair is limited to a maximum of three entrants in each of the Mississippi Science and Engineering Fairs categories.

The 1987 winners are:

Behavioral and Social Sciences: Kristie Pearce, third grade and Jeanene Watson, fourth grade.

Botany and Microbiology: Rachel Spear, first grade; Dawn Perkins, third grade; Robert Lanclos, third grade and Robert Lanclos, fourth grade.

grade.

Chemistry and Biochemistry: Scott Esher, third grade; Jennifer Thomas, fourth grade and Jessica Fountain, fourth grade.

Math, Computers, Earth and Space: Jennifer Storey, second grade; Miranda Spear, third grade; Kristy Ladnier, third grade; Sean Ziegeler, fourth grade and Kelly Breland, fourth grade.

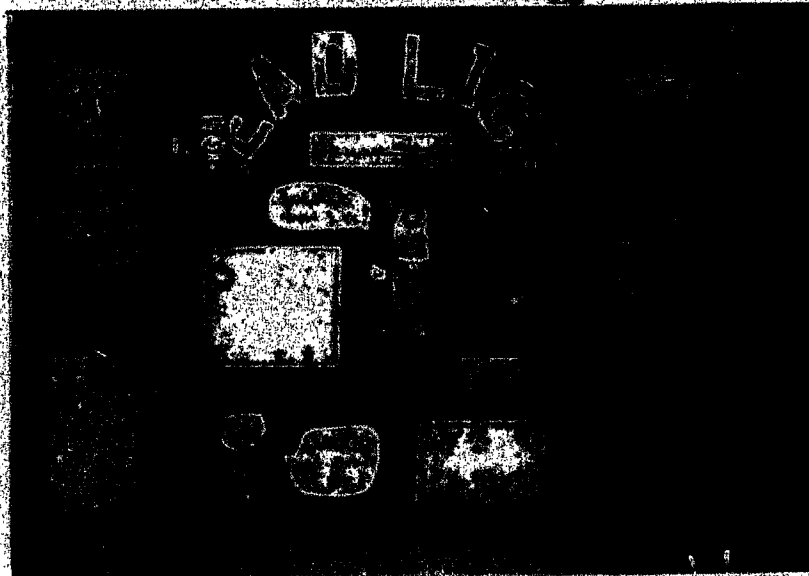

Physics and Engineering: Erica Schwartz, third grade; Chris Duhe, fourth grade and Ledia Austin, fourth grade.

All students who entered a project in the Science Fair received a first, second or third place ribbon. Regional Science Fair winners received a trophy also.

Although there is no regional competition for kindergarten students, the Science Fair judges were so impressed with the kindergarten projects that each of the 13 projects entered was awarded a first place ribbon.

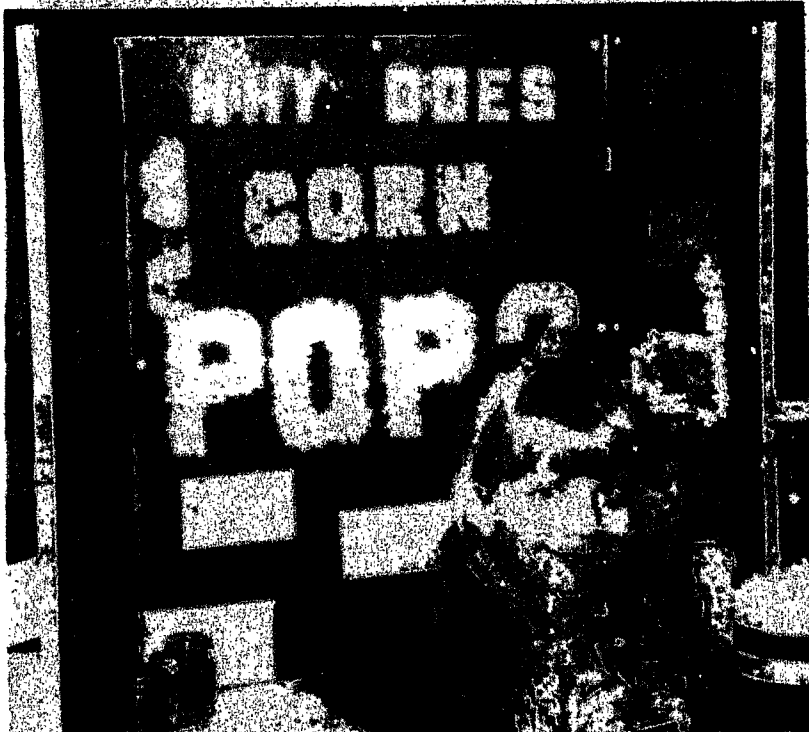

Outstanding efforts by students in the Special Education Class were also rewarded with blue ribbons.

Coast Episcopal Girls take tournament honors

The Coast Episcopal High School Raiders girls basketball team completed its most successful season by compiling 7 wins and 8 losses on their way to the Gulf Coast Christian Athletic Conference tournament championship.

In the championship game against Calvary Christian Academy from New Orleans, the Lady Raiders displayed a dominating defense and a steady and effective offensive effort in winning the game 31-14.

Junior Catherine Smith came through with another stellar performance scoring 18 points and snagging 10 rebounds. Her effort at the center position has made the Raiderettes tough to beat.

Melissa Catron, eighth grade, and Leah Salisbury, junior, performed excellently in controlling the ball and scoring 6 and 4 points respectively.

Margaret Murdock, senior, had 2 points and Kristin Catron, junior, had 1 point to round out the scoring.

The Lady Raiders lose only one senior, Margaret Murdock, from an improving team.

Coach Calvin Smith indicates he has the nucleus for a strong team next season in an improving league.

Domino's Pizza organizing junior tennis league

A Domino's pizza team tennis league for junior tennis players age 18 and under is being organized to provide competition between six local tennis facilities, tennis professional Cameron Carraway announced today.

Play is scheduled to begin March 21, culminating with a Domino's Pizza party on May 9.

Participating sites include Gulfport Racquet Club, Diamondhead Country Club, Hiller Park, Treasure Oaks Country Club, Bayou Bluff Tennis Club, and Plantation Pines Racquet Club.

Entry fee for the league is $10, and entry forms are available at each facility.

Each participant receives court time and a Domino's Pizza Team Tennis T-shirt, and must supply two cans of tennis balls.

Winning teams will receive Domino's Pizza Team Tennis Parker Rollerpoint pens.

"We had a spectacular turnout last season and we apologize for turning people away," Carraway said. "I'd like to emphasize signing up early to ensure a spot on a team."

Domino's Pizza Team Tennis enables boys and girls to compete together in an exciting fast-paced format. The format is five on five boys and girls singles and doubles, and mixed doubles.

Billie Jean King, Commissioner of Domino's Pizza Team Tennis, feels that team competition in tennis hasn't been emphasized enough. "Growing up in team sports as a youngster, I see a need for this type of format in tennis," she said.

"It teaches children the socialization process, and prepares them for life. As a result, they'll have a better quality of life. But above all, it's fun!"

For more information, contact Carraway at the Plantation Pines Racquet Club, (601) 864-7662.

PRC's rodeo star getting national attention

Pearl River College rodeo star Russell Drury is bringing national attention to the River.

After 24 rodeos, Drury, an animal science major from Picayune, is holding down fifth place in the nation for team-roping.

Bonney signs with Perk

Hope Bonney, a graduating senior and honor student at Pass Christian High School, has signed a grant-in-aid basketball scholarship with Mississippi Gulf Coast Junior College's Perkinston Campus, according to Coach Doris Smith.

Bonney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bonney of Pass Christian, was a Girls' State participant, a member of the Homecoming Court and Homecoming Queen in her senior year.

She was a member of the Valentine Court and was selected Valentine Queen her junior year.

Rodeo has become one of America's most loved and popular sports, but, unlike most other sports, rodeo is not for just anyone.

"It takes a specially bred person to tackle such a dedicated, daring, and dangerous task," said Tom Strebeck, faculty advisor to the PRC Rodeo Club. "Russell embodies the true spirit of the rodeo sportsman."

Drury, 23, and his partner, a student at Mississippi State, have won many honors as intercollegiate competitors. At Southern Arkansas University, back in November, the PRC sophomore placed first overall, second in First-Go and first in Short-Go in team roping.

At Murray State University in Kentucky, Drury won first in First-Go, Short-Go and Average. Last week at Michigan State University he took first in First-Go and third in Average.

Even though rodeo has its rewards, Russell and his horses must spend countless hours on the road.

"Michigan State is a long way from Poplarville," said Strebeck. "The expense is great but the reward can be even greater for those who love the sport."

Russell is planning to attend Mississippi State University and complete his major. He also plans to become a professional team roper.

Strebeck said the other members of the Rodeo Club are very proud of the recognition Russell is bringing to their organization.

Former Hawks, Tigers hold key slots on Wildcats roster

POPLARVILLE—When Pearl River College football coach Mike Nelson sent shopping this year for freshman football players his list was not too long.

It couldn't be because the PRC head master has 35 sophomores returning from a team that posted a 7-3 mark and lost two of those games by only five points.

"We were limited to the number of players we could sign," Nelson said. "We had an excellent group to choose from, but because of limitation (the squad is limited to 55 by the state) we had to be very selective."

Nelson would sign only 10 for the coming year and of that number, out-of-state players were also limited. The junior college presidents voted back in December to reduce the number of out-of-state players from 24 to 16.

That left Nelson with only four slots open for out-of-state players. When tryouts were held back in February, 65 out-of-state players were on hand while 125 district players showed up for the session.

It's early in the year, however, Nelson and his staff are very excited about the coming season. There's no wonder why.

Included in the list of 35 sophs are four all-stars and a complete sophomore starting team on offense and defense. "We have basically the same team coming back," Nelson said. "The sophomores we lost are being replaced by two to three players in each position."

"In fact, we look so much better up and down the line," Nelson said. The line is something Nelson smiles about.

Here's why. From tightend to tightend the Wildcats average 225 pounds. Five of the seven are also at least 6'5 and that includes all-star tackle Devin Rogers of West Jefferson from the New Orleans area.

Other offensive all-state players include wide-receiver Anthony Robinson (6'4-200) of Vigor, Alabama and All-Region running back Thurman Geathers of Georgetown, South Carolina.

Geathers has 4.5 speed and is a super-star type running back. He gained more than 900 yards last year and averaged nearly eight yards per carry.

On defense, all-state player Roy Wayne Jones, will be moved from defensive end to linebacker to fill the gap left by Poplarville's Greg Amacker.

Pearl River's defense was in the top 10 in the nation last year in rushing yards allowed category.

Roland Martin best summarized in his book '101 Bass Catching Secrets' what I consider a very important rule of thumb: "Actually I find that hunger accounts for maybe no more than a third of my strikes—but that third is a very important part of the bass I catch." Feeding bass are the easiest to catch just as hungry grocery shoppers are prone to buy more "treats" than they really need.

But in order to capitalize on bass feeding behavior, there are a few fundamental principles to understand about how this instinct really motivates the bass to strike.

"One of the main things to keep in mind," stresses Ken Cook, Evinrude Outboards Pro Team member, "is that the bass is a cold-blooded animal. Its feeding habits depend to a large degree on the water temperature—but not always."

Water temperature affects the bass' metabolic rate, which is a fancy way of saying that the water temperature affects the digestive process. Most anglers realize that fish digest their prey much quicker in the summer months than in the winter months due to this temperature affect on the digestive process.

In colder water fish are less active and digest their meals more slowly. Cook also stresses that bass experience heightened activity in water up to around 85 degrees, at which temperature the bass' activity plateaus. Higher temperatures cause a decline in activity because of the negative influence of very warm water on the digestive process.

"Feeding behavior depends greatly on water temperature," state Cook. "The bass angler should key his lure selection and presentation to the water temperature. So, you fish your lures much slower in cold water and faster when the water's hot."

Next time you wonder about what's the best time to go fishing, you might just want to listen to your stomach—then remember, the best way to catch that bass might just be through his stomach!

Here's a service tip from Outboard Marine Corporation, the Johnson and Evinrude people.

Smear a little grease on the tilt tube steering ram to prevent the tube from seizing up during winter storage. The tilt tube should be periodically greased during the regular boating season to keep steering operating smoothly.

Have a question you'd like a bass pro to answer? Jot it down and mail it to "Bassin' with the Pros" at this newspaper. Answer to your questions will appear in a future column.

SPORTS FROM THE PRESSBOX

Has anyone else noticed the increasing amount of knee injuries springing up in sports? It's no secret the athletes of today are physically bigger and stronger than ever before but for some reason they are more injury prone, especially in the knees. Here's why:

The surfaces that they train and play on have a direct impact on the problem. Many sports require a hard floor and in those instances, you can't get around some of the wear and tear on the body's shock absorbers. But a few don't need to be played on hard surfaces. Football, baseball and soccer should be played on real grass. Artificial turf, drastically reduces the career of a player. Statistically, it causes 30 percent more injuries than natural turf. The pounding that an athlete's body takes as a result of the surface could mean plus or minus years on his career. The stature of today's sports stars could also be the rationale behind the knee problems. Athletes begin training and lifting weights at younger ages. They also have better nutritional information. All of this makes for bulkier players.

It has reached the stage where a body cannot take the bulk and the knee is the first indicator of this situation.

If five or more players from the same team send all applications together, a team price of $125 per player will be offered, Johnson said.

MUW's Basketball Camp is operated within the guidelines of the Mississippi High School Athletic Association and the Mississippi Private School Activities Association. It has been approved or recognized by state high school athletic associations in Alabama, Tennessee, Louisiana, Florida and Arkansas.

has the rule, and there is not a more exciting play in the game. Teams are in a closer score longer than in the professional ranks. Strategy, execution and second guessing are major factors that the NFL would be wiser and better off to take notes from its little brother at college. Coaches have been against the play too. That is hard to believe, but it is true. Honestly, they do not want the added responsibility. It seems to me, it should be part of coaching to decide in critical situations the path a team will take. They make them in other situations; why would they shy away from this one? Is it true that colleges play to win and the pros play not to lose? It appears so!

If the pros can't punch it in from three yards out, they all should go back to school. The big leagues should take note that the two-point play will only serve to enhance the game.

TV coordinator for papal visit lists pool coverage assignments

NEW ORLEANS—The momentous visit to New Orleans by Pope John Paul II will create the largest and most cooperative venture in the history of New Orleans television, according to a 31-year veteran of the electronic media.

Jerry E. Romig, president of WLAE Television (the city's second Public Broadcast Service, which was built by the Archdiocese of New Orleans) and coordinator for the live "pool" television coverage of the historic papal visit to New Orleans Sept. 11-13, stated that New Orleans television stations will produce and cover the papal visit like no other individual or event in the city's history.

"From his arrival at New Orleans International Airport to his departure, viewers will be offered a total television picture," Romig said. "Every station equipped for remote live coverage has generously and unhesitatingly agreed to participate in the pool. This community is assured of complete live television because of their dedication."

There is no doubt, said Romig, that the papal visit will prove to be the single largest event ever televised in Louisiana. More cameras, more technicians and more dollars will be expended toward this occasion than any event ever staged in the state.

"No Super Bowl, no presidential visit, no Mardi Gras has ever demanded the interest and excitement of his coming," Romig said.

As pool coordination chief, Romig's responsibilities are to bring together the local stations in the common cause of assuring live coverage from each location visited by the Pontiff. While making that assurance, Romig must also retain a control mechanism to prevent a "stampede" of Betacams focused on the Pope.

Five local television stations will participate in the live pool coverage. Their participation assures each broadcaster the opportunity to share equally in all pool programming.

"What we do in creating the pool, we do for each other," Romig said. "No one station in the city could totally cover the visit, but working together we will."

Tentative plans are to have WLAE-TV produce the arrival and departure coverage from Moisant Airport plus an anticipated appearance by Pope John Paul Saturday evening from the balcony of Notre Dame Seminary. The Pope will reside at Archbishop Philip M. Hannan's home adjacent to Notre Dame Seminary during his visit to New Orleans.

WDSU-TV, Channel 4, has been assigned Superdome pool coverage and will present a complete television picture of the Pope's appearance in one of the Dome quadrants before members of Catholic elementary and secondary school leadership from around the nation.

Live coverage of a youth rally in the Superdome's main arena will follow.

WYES-TV, Channel 12, has accepted the task of producing the pool feed at an outdoor Mass from the east campus of the University of New Orleans.

WVUE-TV, Channel 8, will be the production source for the Holy Father's convocation at the Xavier University campus Saturday evening with Catholic university leaders. Romig believes the individual sites developed into a smooth production pattern for the television stations. WDSU-TV, he pointed out, has a long history of presenting major events from the St. Louis Cathedral. WDSU, the local NBC affiliate, has televised the Christmas Midnight Mass from the cathedral for 38 consecutive years.

In addition, WDSU cameras covered the historic visit of French President Charles DeGaulle to the cathedral and Jackson Square, the memorial Requiem for Congressman Hale Boggs, and services attended by several presidents of the United States.

WVUE-TV has been the producer of television coverage from the Superdome since the opening of the arena. "Their chief engineer, Hugh Burney, and executive producer, Mike Adams, know the place like a book," Romig said. The Loyola University-owned station has produced for television every conceivable type of event from the Dome.

Romig feels WYES-TV, operating one of the nation's finest remote video facilities, will be able to do an eight-camera pickup from the Lakefront. Two current members of the WYES remote production team participated in the live coverage of the Holy Father's last U.S. visit, he said.

Production manager Jimmy

Moriarty and producer-director Dave Woodward were then employed by Iowa Public Television and were assigned to the pool coverage of Pope John Paul's liturgical celebration from an Iowa farm.

WYES is earning national attention with its remote facility and recently handled coverage of a Miss Universe Contest from Panama. Other WYES remote credits include the major league baseball playoffs.

"For WVUE, covering the Xavier convocation means a somewhat short distance to travel since the university and the ABC affiliate are within shouting distance of each other," Romig said.

News director Matt James said he has been besieged with requests from his staff to serve on the remote production team. Chief engineer Fred Barrett will supervise the pickup from WVUE.

WLAE chief engineer Doug Curry will coordinate technical arrangements among all local stations.

For Romig, the work ahead is the most challenging of all over the span of his broadcasting years, ones which began in the newsroom of WDSU-TV in June 1955. "There won't be anything like it again in our lifetime," Romig said. "We're praying for a total absence of technical difficulties."

Applications are now being accepted for the 14th annual Basketball camp at Mississippi University for Women.

The camp, set May 31-June 5, is designed for girls in the seventh grade through high school. Samye Johnson, MUW basketball and volleyball coach, will serve as camp director. She will be assisted by collegiate and high school coaches.

SPORTS FROM THE PRESSBOX

Has anyone else noticed the increasing amount of knee injuries springing up in sports? It's no secret the athletes of today are physically bigger and stronger than ever before but for some reason they are more injury prone, especially in the knees. Here's why:

The surfaces that they train and play on have a direct impact on the problem. Many sports require a hard floor and in those instances, you can't get around some of the wear and tear on the body's shock absorbers. But a few don't need to be played on hard surfaces. Football, baseball and soccer should be played on real grass. Artificial turf, drastically reduces the career of a player. Statistically, it causes 30 percent more injuries than natural turf. The pounding that an athlete's body takes as a result of the surface could mean plus or minus years on his career. The stature of today's sports stars could also be the rationale behind the knee problems. Athletes begin training and lifting weights at younger ages. They also have better nutritional information. All of this makes for bulkier players.

It has reached the stage where a body cannot take the bulk and the knee is the first indicator of this situation.

Should the NFL adopt a two-point conversion play? This issue again will be discussed at some length by League management at the end of the year. Hopefully, 20 years will be a charm. When the old American Football League merged with the old National Football League, the play was considered, but it didn't get past the meeting room. The rationale for declining the play was that its omission would create a more exciting brand of football. Not so! College football

Consumer Update

Part one in a series about renting

By Janet K. Lukens
Coast Consumer
Management Center

The Landlord's Point of View... Many homeowners find that the emotional and financial stress which occur because of tenant problems can be overwhelming—particularly if you cherish the home and plan to return to it in the future.

To eliminate some of the stress and get on your way to becoming a worry-free landlord, we offer the following advice.

To have good tenants, you must be a good landlord. Your goals as a landlord should be to: (a) have a property ready for rental which is in the same condition you would want it to be in if you were buying it—you owe this to your tenants; (b) Choose responsible tenants; (c) Set up a management system which both you and your tenant accept as fair; (d) Be responsive to tenant complaints and suggestions; and (e) Realize there is no way you can over-communicate with your tenant.

Once you've decided to rent your home, you must decide whether to rent the property yourself or seek the assistance of a professional manager.

When making your decision, keep in mind that management fees normally range between 3 and 7 percent of your monthly rent.

Some property managers receive their fees for collecting the rent, and not very much more, despite what the management agreement may say.

Also, remember that the 1986 Tax Reform Act allows only landlords who actively manage their own properties to use rental losses as a tax deduction.

Some property owners find they have more peace of mind and control if they manage the property themselves. Become knowledgeable on how to manage a rental. There are many good books available which have a wide variety of forms you will need, including leases.

Although you must accept the fact that the clean, well-maintained home your tenants moved into will not be the same when you return, you can avoid a good number of traditional tenant problems if, in screening prospective tenants, you keep in mind the following criteria:

1. Gross income should be four times as much as the rent.
2. The prospective tenant should have held a steady job for the past six months.
3. Tenant's assets (in savings) should be five times as much as the rent.
4. Tenant's credit record should be clean.
5. Previous rent record should show that rent was paid on time.
6. It is preferred that there be no pets.

7. The number of tenants should not exceed three, regardless of the number of bedrooms.

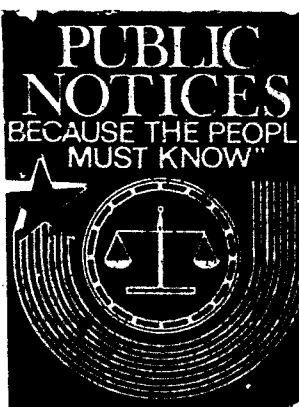

8. Look for a tenant of above-average intelligence who is cooperative.

9. Finally, look for a tenant who has remained for at least six months at his last two residences.

Keep in mind that these are the ideal, and you may not find someone who meets all these requirements. Apply them all when you can.

To reject prospective tenants without legal complications, there are two laws you must follow. The Civil Rights Act of 1966 prohibits discrimination on racial grounds and the Fair Housing Act of 1968 which prohibits discrimination on the basis of race, color, sex, religion, or national origin.

Excluding the above, you have a good amount of choice in whom you rent to such as nonsmokers, people without pets or children, or the number of tenants. Remember that you do not have to rent to anyone just because they can pay the rent.

Bay Sr. High is "Addicted to Life"

The 1986-87 Student Council program against drinking and driving began with an assembly sponsored by Pepsi-Cola and Burger King.

Ninety-three percent of the seniors attended this program which encouraged teenagers to be cautious and to think before they act.

Attending the assembly were numerous parents and concerned members of the community. The majority (95 percent) of these seniors who attended this assembly thought the film helped alert teenagers to the problem of drinking and driving.

On Feb. 23, the Student Council placed powerful posters in the hall against drinking and driving which are believed to have made students think twice about driving drunk.

Each of the classes were responsible for involving the community, display messages from Bay High that asked students not to drink and drive.

The senior class also made flyers to invite the public to the Student Council assembly and showed films throughout the week on the consequences of drinking and driving.

The sophomores made a six-foot poster displaying newspaper clippings on drinking and driving related car accidents.

The freshman class passed out 600 Contracts for Life that were signed by both the student and parent. Mayors of Bay St. Louis and Waveland proclaimed the week "Addicted to Life Week."

According to a survey taken before the antidrinking and driving program was started at Bay High for the week of Feb. 23-27, 45 percent of the seniors drove while drinking.

Now, after the program, the number of seniors who say they will drink and drive has dropped from 45 percent to 12 percent.

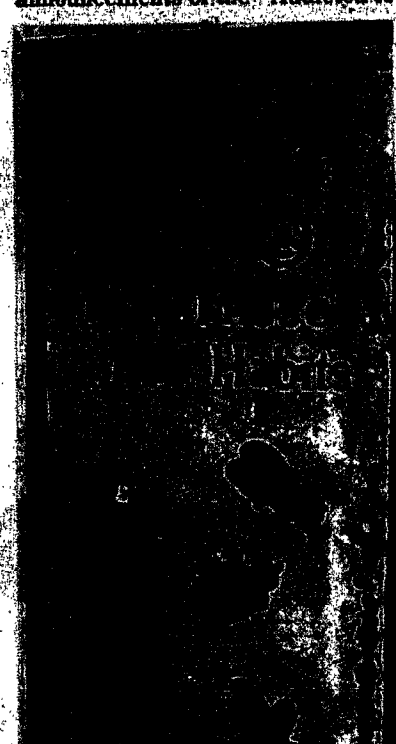

BHS SENIORS Robinette Lipscombe, left, and Sharon Rameed place announcements of the "Addicted to Life" assembly in church bulletin.

Janet Roache's freshman homeroom won second place in door decorating contest.

Lynn Stechman's freshman homeroom won third place in door decorating contest.

Judy Moore's senior homeroom was awarded first place in door decorating contest.

STUDENT COUNCIL President Jennifer Cotte hangs one of 12 posters against drinking and driving.
